New Appointee Biographies:

Greg Freer

Greg Freer is an architect and associate at METAFOR architecture, holds a Masters of Architecture from the University of British Columbia and a Bachelor of Arts from the University of Alberta. With a wealth of experience spanning over 18 years in the industry, Greg has adeptly led both large and small multidisciplinary teams across various projects throughout western Canada, encompassing institutional, residential, commercial, and health care sectors. His commitment to the field is further evidenced by his active role as a council member of the Alberta Association of Architects.

Born and raised in Edmonton, Greg maintains a strong connection to his hometown and proudly considers it his home. He approaches his work with a sense of responsibility and community spirit, continually striving to enhance the local landscape with each project he undertakes. Whether through his direct involvement in design endeavors or his contributions to broader community initiatives via committees or organizations, Greg remains dedicated to making meaningful improvements to the place he calls home.

Shea Gibson (Alternate)

Shea Gibson is a locally raised and trained Albertan architect. Educated at the University of Calgary and now practicing as a registered architect with GEC Architecture in Edmonton. Shea grew up on the prairies and through his work looks to celebrate the vernacular design opportunities presented by the prairies and the Canadian climate in a City as unique as Edmonton. Growing up in small towns across the province, Shea has experienced the urban fabric and his neighbourhoods at various scales, and his lived experience is further enriched by the perspectives gained by living and visiting different communities and cultures around the world.

Shea is the leader of the MADE organization here in Edmonton, volunteers to celebrate and highlight great local design while connecting with the community at large. He is an avid learner with a curious spirit and is always looking to supplement his formal architectural training with additional design knowledge focused on social, environmental, and economic sustainability. Shea has a genuine passion for architecture, a commitment to sustainable and inclusive design, and a desire to actively contribute to the evolution of our city. He relishes the prospect of collaborating with like-minded individuals to shape Edmonton's design landscape and contribute to the city's continued growth and vibrancy.
