2025 Neighbourhood Affordability Ratios

The tables and figures below provide an overview of the affordable housing ratios in each neighbourhood based on the City of Edmonton internal 2025 affordable housing database. The affordable housing ratio shows the amount of non-market housing in each neighbourhood relative to the amount of market housing. A higher ratio means there is a greater amount of affordable housing. Note the dwelling counts used in the denominator of the ratio come from the most recent federal census (2021). It can be assumed that the actual ratios are likely lower than what has been presented due to the growth of market housing in Edmonton since 2021.

The results in Table 1 indicate that 105 neighbourhoods saw an increase in affordability ratios since 2019 (bolded), 47 neighbourhoods saw a decrease (underlined), and the remaining neighbourhoods saw no change (regular text). A decrease or no change in the affordability ratio does not necessarily indicate a lack of affordable housing development. It may simply reflect that affordable housing was not developed at the same rate as market housing.
