Below is a brief public introduction as provided by new Appointees:

Stephanie Bailey	Edmonton Historical Board
Stephanie was born and raised in Edmonton and holds a Master of Arts degree in English Literature from the University of Victoria. She works in communications and was previously the managing editor of Curb, a quarterly publication on urban planning and policy, produced by the City Region Studies Centre at the Faculty of Extension. She is excited by the opportunity to further the conversation about how built heritage shapes Edmonton's civic identity and to help engage more voices in the stories we tell about the city.
Anna Gibson Hollow	Edmonton Historical Board
Anna Gibson Hollow is a proud Edmontonian who has lived in Edmonton for over 30 years. She is a professional Archivist who has a keen interest in the built and documentary heritage of the city of Edmonton. Anna works at the University of Alberta as the Director of Advancement Records and the Advancement FOIP Liaison Officer. She has a Bachelor of Arts degree and an Information Access and Protection of Privacy certificate from the University of Alberta, and a Master of Archival Studies degree from the University of British Columbia. Anna lives in west Edmonton with her husband, 7 year old son, and two dogs: a 10 year old corgi and 11 year old mini dachshund. In their spare time, the family loves to walk or ride their bikes through the beautiful River Valley, spend time at Telus World of Science, and visit museums and historic sites. They are especially fond of Fort Edmonton Park where Anna and her husband were married 10 years ago. Anna is eager to contribute her time and skills to the Edmonton Historical Board.

James McTague	Edmonton Historical Board
James McTague has had a passion for Alberta heritage and history for many years. James has resided in the Edmonton area his entire life. James studied at the University of Alberta, receiving an undergraduate, a graduate, and a professional degree. When James is not working as a practicing lawyer at a hundred year old Edmonton law firm, he can be seen spending his time cycling through Edmonton's heritage areas, rummaging through local antique shops, or restoring some sort of vintage item. James is currently renovating a heritage designated house in the Westmount Architectural Heritage Area and is well on his way to bringing it back to its former glory. James is interested in collecting a variety of items in all shapes and sizes, from early Edmonton bicycle plates to classic Ford automobiles. James has, passion for Edmonton and believes that a city's heritage has a profound impact on its culture and sense of community. James welcomes the opportunity to assist the Edmonton Historical Board in preserving Edmonton's architectural heritage for both current and future Edmontonians to enjoy.
